

Bu

Chinese Civil Code – The Specific Parts

Chinese Civil Code - The Specific Parts -

A Handbook

edited by

Yuanshi Bu

2023

Published by

Verlag C.H.Beck oHG, Wilhelmstraße 9, 80801 München, Germany, email: bestellung@beck.de

Co-published by

Hart Publishing, Kemp House, Chawley Park, Cumnor Hill, Oxford, OX2 9PH, United Kingdom, online at: www.hartpub.co.uk and Nomos Verlagsgesellschaft mbH & Co. KG, Waldseestraße 3–5, 76530 Baden-Baden, Germany, email: nomos@nomos.de

Published in North America by Hart Publishing

An Imprint of Bloomsbury Publishing 1385 Broadway, New York, NY 10018, USA email: mail@hartpub.co.uk

Suggested citation:

Bu, Chinese Civil Code – The Specific Parts, 2023, p. [#] mn. [#]

www.beck.de

ISBN 978 3 406 79000 3 (C.H.BECK)

ISBN 978 1 5099 7291 3 (HART)

ISBN 978 3 7560 1123 0 (NOMOS)

© 2023 Verlag C.H.Beck oHG,
Wilhelmstr. 9, 80801 München

Printed in Germany by

Westermann Druck Zwickau GmbH,
Crimmitschauer Straße 43, 08058 Zwickau

Typeset by

Reemers Publishing Services GmbH, Krefeld
Cover: Druckerei C.H.Beck Nördlingen

CO₂ neutral

chbeck.de/nachhaltig

All rights reserved. No part of this publication may be reproduced, stored in a retrieval system, or transmitted, in any form or by any means, without the prior permission of Verlag C.H.Beck, or as expressly permitted by law under the terms agreed with the appropriate reprographic rights organisation.

Enquiries concerning reproduction which may not be covered by the above should be addressed to C.H.Beck at the address above.

Preface and Acknowledgments

The first Civil Code of the PRC (CCC), adopted by the Chinese national law makers in May 2020, came into force on January 1st, 2021. The Code has 1260 articles and consists of a General Part and six books on property, contracts, personality rights, marriage and family, succession and torts. With the exception of the Book on Personality Rights, all the others are based on existing individual statutes that ceased to apply after the Code became effective. As China does not have a separate Commercial Code, the CCC is equally applicable to commercial transactions. In this sense, the Code is not only of interest for comparative law scholars, but also of great importance for business operation in the country.

Despite the recent increase in publications in English dedicated to the Chinese civil law, an up-to-date comprehensive book covering the entire breadth of the CCC is still missing. Therefore, this book strives to provide foreign readers with a systematic and in-depth analysis of the Code.

The “Chinese Civil Code – The Specific Parts” is intended as a volume to follow the “Chinese Civil Code – The General Part” and covers the six specific books of the Code. In principle, this book is organized in line with the structure of the Code itself. In the CCC, real security and personal security are addressed separately, even though some of the issues are the same. This book consequently designates a separate part for the security law to avoid redundancy and to highlight the significant amendments brought about by the Code and its subsequent judicial interpretation. As contract law makes up nearly a half of the entire Civil Code, this book also puts an emphasis on this area and address six major contract types in detail: the sales contract, lease contract, guaranty contract, mandate contract, factoring contract and technology contract. Due to the limited scope of this book, general property law is mainly dealt with in the context of its major amendments.

In line with the three other books on Chinese law in this series, this one includes a list of laws and regulations, a bibliography and an index at the end. English translations of the norms are mostly from official sources, although some are from Kluwer China and Chinalawinfo. This book attempts to use consistent English translations for Chinese terms and where this is not the case, an indication of alternative translations by different authors is given.

I thank the contributors to this book for sharing their valuable insights in the relevant fields. I am indebted to Johann Wigger, Antonia Becker, Elisabeth Victoria König and Sebastian Krieger of the Institute for East Asian Business Law for taking care of the formatting of the manuscript and compiling the index. Gratitude is also owed to Dr. Tietie Zhang for his assistance in organizing the proofreading, Lucy Eastwood, Wiktorija Gaslawska, Carlos Jackson Almeida for taking on this work, Yang Sijia for editing the legal sources and Mr. Thomas Klich of the Beck Publishing House for his support of this project.

Freiburg, September 2022

Yuanshi Bu

Table of Contents

Preface and Acknowledgments.....	V
List of Authors.....	XXVII
Abbreviations.....	XXIX

Part 1 Introduction

Chapter 1. Introduction	1
I. Legislative History	1
II. Guiding Ideas and Codification Techniques	2
III. Major Disputes and New Legal Concepts.....	3
1. General Part for the Law of Obligations.....	3
2. Book on Personality Rights.....	5
3. Matrimonial Community Debt	6
IV. Borrowings from Foreign Law.....	8
V. Transitional Period.....	8
1. Legal Fact Arising Prior to the CCC Coming into Effect.....	8
2. Retroactive Application of New Rules Instead of Old Rules.....	9
3. Retroactive Application of New Rules Due to Lack of Old Rules	9
4. “Cross-Law” Performance of Contractual Obligations.....	10
VI. Relationship with Special Law	10
VII. Future Prospects	10

Part 2 Property Law

Chapter 2. Property Law	11
I. Overview	11
1. Legislative History.....	11
2. Sources of Law	11
II. Acquisitive Prescription	12
1. Concept.....	12
2. Discussion in Chinese Literature	12
3. Statute of Limitations	12
III. Principles of Property Law	12
1. Equal Protection of Different Types of Owners.....	12
2. Absoluteness of Real Rights	13
3. Principle of Separation	13
a) Concept.....	13
b) Situation under the Property Law	13
c) No Change under the CCC.....	14
d) Summary.....	14
4. Numerus Clausus	14
5. Principle of Specificity.....	15
6. Principle of Publicity	15

Table of Contents

IV. Newly Introduced Legal Concepts.....	15
1. Land Management Right.....	15
a) Nature of Land Management Right.....	15
b) Establishment and Transfer of Land Management Rights.....	16
c) Encumbrance in Land Management Rights.....	16
2. Life Estate.....	17
a) Concept.....	17
b) Establishment, Extinguishment and Encumbrance.....	17
c) Relationship with Other Rights.....	17
3. Accessio.....	18
4. Condominium Property.....	19

Part 3

Contracts: The General Part

Chapter 3. Overview	21
I. Sources of Law.....	21
1. Statutes.....	21
2. Judicial Interpretations.....	21
3. Guiding Cases.....	22
II. Features of the Book on Contracts.....	22
1. Relationship with the Book of the General Part.....	22
2. Relationship with Special Agreements Concerning Civil Status.....	22
3. Relationship between the Three Parts inside the Book on Contracts.....	23
4. The Two Roles of the General Part of the Book on Contracts.....	23
Chapter 4. General Part of the ‘Law of Obligations’	24
I. Ending of an Obligation.....	24
1. Performance.....	24
a) The Principle of Complete Performance.....	24
b) Performance Involving a Third Party.....	24
aa) Prerequisites.	24
bb) Legal Consequence.	24
c) Giving in Payment (代物清偿).....	25
d) Imputation of Payments (清偿抵充).....	25
aa) Plurality of Obligations.....	25
bb) Plurality of Items under the Same (Monetary) Obligation.	25
2. Offset.....	26
a) Prerequisites.....	26
aa) Offset Status.	26
bb) Effective Exercise.....	26
b) Legal Consequence.	26
3. Other Endings of an Obligation.....	27
a) Escrow.	27
b) Remission.	27
c) Merger (混同).	27
d) Termination of a Contract.	27
II. Alteration of an Obligation.....	27
1. Alteration of the Content vs. Alteration of the Party.....	27
a) Modification.....	27
aa) Contractual Modification.	27

Table of Contents

bb) Statutory Modification.....	28
b) Alteration of the Party.....	28
2. Assignment of a Claim.....	28
a) Prerequisites.....	28
aa) Absolute Assignability of Monetary Claims.....	28
bb) Relative Assignability of Nonmonetary Claims.....	28
b) Legal Consequence.....	29
aa) Arrival of Notice.....	29
bb) Automatic Assignment of Subordinated Rights.....	29
cc) Defenses in Assignment.....	30
dd) Expenses Assumption.....	30
c) Multiple Assignments.....	30
3. Delegation of an Obligation.....	30
a) Prerequisites.....	30
b) Legal Consequence.....	30
aa) Full or Partial Delegation with Remission Effect.....	30
bb) Automatic Delegation of Subordinated Duties.....	31
cc) Defenses in Delegation.....	31
4. Concurrent Assignment and Delegation.....	31
III. Protection for an Obligation.....	31
1. Right of Subrogation.....	32
a) Prerequisites of an Ordinary Subrogation.....	32
b) Legal Consequence of an Ordinary Subrogation.....	33
c) The Special Case of the Maintenance of a Claim.....	33
d) No General Priority against Alternative Measures.....	33
2. Right of Invalidation.....	33
a) Gratuitous Disposals of Assets.....	33
b) Disposals at Obviously Unreasonable Prices or Alike.....	34
c) Exercise of the Right of Invalidation.....	34
d) Legal Consequence.....	34
IV. Special Contents of an Obligation.....	34
1. Money: Monetary Obligations.....	34
a) Monetary Obligations in General.....	34
b) Currency Obligations.....	35
c) Interest Obligations.....	35
2. Plurality of Subject Matters: Optional Obligations.....	35
a) Right of Option.....	35
b) Exercise of the Right.....	35
V. Plurality of Parties.....	36
1. Partial Obligors/Obligees.....	36
2. Joint Obligors/Obligees.....	36
a) Joint Obligations.....	36
b) The Internal Relationship between Joint Obligors.....	36
aa) Prerequisites and the Primary Consequence of a Recourse.....	37
bb) Statutory Transfer of a Claim and Associated Defenses.....	37
cc) Adjustment of the Internal Share.....	37
c) The External Relationship with the Obligee.....	37
aa) Performance, Offset, Escrow.....	37
bb) Delay of the Obligee.....	37
cc) Remission.....	38

Table of Contents

dd) Merger.....	38
d) The Case of Joint Obligees.....	38
3. Other Kinds of Plurality of Parties.....	38
a) Unreal Joint Obligations/Liabilities.....	38
b) Supplementary Liability.....	39
Chapter 5. Formation and Effectiveness of Contracts	40
I. Formation of Contracts.....	40
1. Overview.....	40
2. The Offer	41
a) Effectiveness of the Offer.....	41
aa) Specificity and Definiteness of the Offer.....	41
bb) Intention to Be Bound.....	41
b) The Expiry of the Offer.....	42
3. The Acceptance.....	42
a) Acceptance by Notification or by Conduct.....	42
b) Delayed Acceptance.....	42
c) Qualified Acceptance.....	43
4. Form and Other Special Requirements	43
II. Effectiveness of Contracts.....	44
1. The Independence of Dispute Settlement Clauses.....	44
2. Special Restrictions upon Exemption Clauses.....	44
Chapter 6. Performance of Contracts.....	46
I. The Privity of Contract and Its Exceptions.....	46
1. The Privity of Contract.....	46
a) Performance by a Third Party.....	46
b) Misconception in Practice.....	46
2. Performance to a Third Party	46
a) The Enforcement of Privity of Contract.....	46
b) Exception.....	46
II. Contract Interpretation and the ‘Gap Filler’ Provisions.....	47
1. Contract Interpretation.....	47
a) The Substantive Approach.....	47
b) A Contract in Multiple Languages.....	47
c) Supplementary Interpretation.....	48
2. Default Rules as Gap Fillers.....	48
a) Quality.....	48
b) Price.....	48
c) Place of Performance.....	48
d) Time of Performance.....	49
e) Method of Performance.....	49
f) Performance Expenses.....	49
III. Right of Defense under Bilateral Contracts.....	49
1. Defense of Simultaneous Performance.....	49
a) Dependency of Mutual Obligations.....	49
aa) Bilateral Contracts.....	49
bb) Other Similar Scenarios.....	50
b) Both Obligations are Due.....	50
c) No Order of Priority as to Performance.....	50
d) Nonperformance or Nonconforming Performance of the Counterparty...	50

Table of Contents

e) Legal Consequence.....	50
2. Defense of Consecutive Performance	51
3. Defense of Uncertainty	51
a) Purpose	51
b) Prerequisites.....	51
c) Legal Consequence.....	52
Chapter 7. Liability for Breach of Contract and Precontractual Liability	53
I. Overview	53
1. Breach of Contract.....	53
2. Strict Liability vs. Fault-Based Liability	54
3. A Hard Case: Liability for Breach of Precontract.....	54
II. Continuing Performance.....	55
1. Prerequisites: Particularly the Exclusion of Nonmonetary Obligations.....	55
a) Legal or Factual Impossibility.....	55
aa) A Defense in the Narrow Sense	56
bb) Permanent and Temporary Impossibility	56
cc) Relationship with Illegality and Change of Circumstances.....	56
b) Personal Performance and its Substitute.....	56
c) Excessively High Cost.....	57
d) Untimely Claim for Performance	57
e) No Exclusion of Monetary Obligations?	58
2. Doctrinal Construction and Relationship with Other Liabilities	58
a) Liability or Obligation?.....	58
b) Relationship with Remedial Measures	58
aa) Repair, Reworking, and Replacement as Continuing Performance	59
bb) Return of the Goods.....	59
cc) Reduction of Price or Remuneration	59
dd) Factors and Guidelines in Adopting Remedial Measures	59
c) No Order of Priority in General between Continuing Performance and Damages.....	59
III. The Liability for Damages	59
1. Different Types of Liabilities for Damages.....	59
a) Statutory Damages and Agreed Damages.....	59
b) Compensatory Damages and Punitive Damages.....	60
c) Prerequisites of Statutory Liability for Compensatory Damages.....	60
2. Damage.....	60
a) Expectation Damage and Reliance Damage.....	60
b) Actual Losses and Losses of Profits.....	61
c) Direct Losses and Indirect Losses.....	61
d) Intangible Losses.....	61
3. Causation.....	62
4. Grounds for Liability Exemption.....	62
a) Force Majeure.....	62
b) The Doctrine of Foreseeability	62
c) Contributory Negligence.....	63
d) Duty of Mitigation.....	63
e) Offsetting Losses by Benefits (损益相抵).....	63
5. Liquidated Damages.....	64
a) Increase of Liquidated Damages	64
b) Reduction of Liquidated Damages.....	64

Table of Contents

aa) Purpose.....	64
bb) The Effectiveness of Clauses Excluding the Reduction Rule (or the Increase Rule)	65
cc) Prerequisites	66
dd) Legal Consequence	66
c) Relationship with Statutory Compensatory Damages.....	66
d) Relationship with Monetary Deposit	67
e) Relationship with Usury Laws.....	67
IV. Precontractual Liability	68
1. Violation Against the Principle of Good Faith.....	68
2. Relationship with Other Similar Rules	69
3. Reliance Damages as Primary Consequence.....	70
Chapter 8. Termination of Contracts.....	71
I. Types of Termination	71
1. Termination by Mutual Consent.....	71
2. Two Kinds of Unilateral Termination.....	71
II. General Grounds for the Statutory Right of Termination.....	71
1. Force Majeure.....	71
2. Fundamental Breach of Contract.....	72
a) Criterion: Purpose of Contract is Rendered Impossible to Achieve.....	72
b) Anticipatory Repudiation	73
c) Delayed Performance.....	73
aa) Fundamental Breach	73
bb) Fiction of a Fundamental Breach.....	73
d) Other Kinds of Breaches that Frustrate the Purpose of the Contract.....	74
3. The Discretionary Termination in the Case of Continuing Contracts for an Indefinite Duration	74
III. A Special Judicial Termination for the Breaching Party?	75
1. A Judicial Termination Due to Impossibility of Performance in General.....	75
2. Disputes on the General Judicial Termination for the Breaching Party	75
IV. Restrictions on the Right of Termination	76
1. The General Restriction: A Special Cut-off Period	76
2. The Special Restriction upon the Contractual Right of Termination	77
V. Exercise of the Right of Termination.....	77
1. Prerequisites and Legal Consequence	77
2. The Dispute on the 'Right of Objection' to the Termination	78
VI. Legal Consequences of the Termination.....	78
1. Retroactive Effect for the Termination?.....	78
2. Ending of the Obligations Not Yet Performed.....	79
3. Restitution	79
a) Restoration to the Original State	79
aa) Returning the Goods or Other Items.....	79
bb) Returning the Associated Interest or Other Fruits (孳息).....	79
cc) 'Returning' or Reimbursement of the Necessary Expenses Incurred for Preserving the Goods or Items	80
b) Other Remedial Measures (补救措施).....	80
c) Restrictions.....	80
aa) Circumstances of Performance.....	80
bb) The Nature of the Contract.....	80
4. Relationship with Other Remedies or Rights.....	80

Table of Contents

a) Relationship with Liabilities for Breach of Contract	80
b) Relationship with Security Interests	81
VII. Change of Circumstances	81
1. Overview	81
2. Prerequisites	81
a) Change in Circumstances	81
b) Obvious Unfairness	81
c) Internal Examination	81
3. Duty of Negotiation as a Preliminary Consequence?	82
4. Termination or Modification?	82
a) Judicial Termination	82
b) Judicial Modification	82
c) Order of Priority between Termination and Modification	82
Chapter 9. Standard Terms	84
I. Overview	84
II. Definition of Standard Terms	84
1. Drafted in Advance	84
2. Provided by One Party	85
3. For Repeated Use	85
4. Not Negotiated with the Other Party	85
III. Incorporation of Standard Terms	86
1. Duty to Notify	86
2. Duty to Explain	87
3. Legal Consequence	87
4. Surprising Clauses	87
IV. Interpretation of Standard Terms	87
V. Content Control of Standard Terms	88
1. Scope of Control	88
2. Principle of Fairness	88
3. Role of Default Rules	89
VI. Filling of Loopholes	90
VII. Battle of the Forms	90

Part 4 Typical Contracts

Chapter 10. Sales Contracts	91
I. Overview	91
1. Sources of Law	91
2. Analogous Application of Sales Contracts to Other Contracts	92
II. Definition of a Sales Contract	93
1. Definition	93
2. Object	93
3. Features	94
III. Obligations of the Seller	95
1. Obligation to Deliver	95
a) Physical Delivery	95
b) Alternative Forms of Delivery	95
c) Delivery of Immovables	95
2. Obligation to Transfer Ownership	96

Table of Contents

a) Consensus in rem	96
b) Right of Disposition	96
c) Administrative Control	97
d) IP Rights	97
3. Ancillary Obligations	97
4. Accessory Obligations	97
5. The Performance of the Seller's Obligations.....	98
a) Time.....	98
b) Place.....	98
6. Multiple Sales of the Same Subject Matter.....	98
a) Ordinary Movables.....	99
b) Vehicles, Vessels and Aircraft.....	99
c) Immovables	100
IV. Obligations of the Buyer	100
1. Obligation of Payment	100
2. Obligation of Acceptance of Delivery	100
3. The Performance of Buyer's Obligations	101
a) Place.....	101
b) Time.....	101
c) Currency	101
V. Passing of Risks.....	102
1. Current Rule	102
2. Criticism of the Current Rule.....	102
3. Variants of the Current Rule	103
a) Goods in Need of Transportation	103
b) Creditor's Default	104
c) Goods in Transit.....	104
4. Influences of Breach on the Passing of Risks	105
VI. Warranty Issues	107
1. Theoretical Foundation.....	107
2. Legal Warranty.....	107
3. Material Warranty.....	108
4. Inspection of the Subject Matter and Notification of the Defects	109
a) Ascertainment of Period for Inspection and Notification	109
b) Summary of the Current Rules	110
c) Proposal of Incorporation of the Notification Period into the Inspection Period	110
VII. Breaches in Other Forms	111
1. Excessive Delivery	111
2. Termination due to Non-Conformity of the Principal Subject Matter	111
3. Defectiveness of a Part among Multiple Subject Matters	111
4. Delivery in Installments	112
VIII. Special Forms of Sales	112
1. Installment Purchase	112
2. Sales on Sample.....	113
3. Sales on Trial.....	113
4. Sales under Reservation of Title.....	114
Chapter 11. Lease Contracts.....	115
I. Overview	115
1. Sources of Law	115

Table of Contents

2. Regulation of Lease Contracts	115
II. Validity of Lease Contracts	116
1. Written Requirement and Registration	116
2. Public Law Permit	116
a) Construction Project Planning Permit.	116
b) Fire Protection Requirements.	117
c) Other Mandatory Provisions.	117
3. Lease Term.....	117
4. Multiple Leases.....	117
5. Legal Consequences	118
III. The Lessor's Obligation to Grant and Surrender the Leased Object.....	118
1. Permissibility of Change	118
2. Removal of Change	119
a) Lessor's Consent.	119
b) Type of Attachment.	119
3. Lessor's Compensation for Keeping Fixtures.....	120
4. Lessor's Indemnity for the Costs of Decoration or Addition	121
5. Lessee's Compensation for the Damage to the Leased Object.....	121
6. Alternative Solutions.....	122
IV. The Lessor's Obligation of Guaranty and Maintenance.....	123
1. Material Defects	123
2. Legal Defects.....	124
3. Specific Defects	124
4. Obligation of the Lessee.....	125
V. The Lessee's Obligation to Pay Rent	125
1. Payment Term.....	125
2. Arrears of Rent.....	125
3. Rent Reduction Due to Deviation of Size.....	125
4. Rent Payment despite Water, Electricity and Gas Supply Cut-Off	125
5. Lien	126
VI. The Lessee's Obligation to Use and Return of the Object.....	126
1. General Provisions	126
2. Commercial Leases.....	126
3. Obligations upon Termination.....	127
VII. Sublease	127
1. Permissibility of a Sublease	127
2. Relationship between the Main Lessee and the Main Lessor.....	128
3. Relationship between the Sublessee and the Main Lessee	129
4. Relationship between the Sublessee and the Main Lessor	130
VIII. Transfer of the Leased Object.....	131
1. Purchase is Subject to Existing Leases.....	131
a) Prerequisites	131
aa) Transfer of the Leased Object.....	131
bb) The Lessee is in Occupation of the Leased Object.....	131
b) Legal Consequences	131
c) Exceptions	132
2. Pre-Emptive Right of the Lessee	132
a) Prerequisites	132
aa) Sale of the Leased Real Property.	132
bb) Same Conditions.	132

Table of Contents

cc) Timely Exercise	132
b) Exceptions	133
aa) Sale to a Co-owner or a Close Relative.	133
bb) No Partial Purchase.....	133
cc) Breach of the Lessee.	133
c) Legal Consequences	133
3. Expropriation of the Leased Real Property	134
IX. Leases in Enforcement Proceedings	134
1. Relationship between Leases and Mortgages	134
2. Third Party Objection	134
X. Termination of the Lease.....	135
1. Ordinary Termination.....	135
2. Extraordinary Termination	135
3. Death of the Lessee	135
4. Implicit Extension of the Lease Term	136
5. Pre-Emptive Right of the Lessee to Extend the Lease Term.....	136
6. Compensation	136
a) Compensation for the Lessor.....	136
b) Compensation for the Lessee.....	137
7. Recovery of Possession.....	137
Chapter 12. Factoring Contracts.....	138
I. Overview	138
1. Background for Codification	138
2. Influence of Foreign Law.....	138
3. Relationship with the General Part of the Book on Contract.....	139
II. Definition, Types and Major Contents.....	139
1. Definition in Art. 761 CCC.....	139
a) Performance of Major Functions.....	139
b) Permissible Scope of the Receivables	140
c) Market Access Limitation.....	141
2. Types	142
a) Recourse and nonrecourse factoring.....	142
b) Disclosed Factoring and Undisclosed Factoring	143
c) Other Types	143
3. Written Requirement and Major Contents	143
III. Bar on Assignment.....	143
1. Legal Effect.....	143
2. Subsequent Assignments.....	144
3. Conflict with Reservation of Title	144
IV. Factoring Fraud.....	144
1. Prerequisites.....	144
a) Fabrication of an Account Receivable	144
b) Actual or Constructive Knowledge.....	145
2. Legal Consequence	146
3. Necessity	146
V. Notice by the Factor	146
VI. The Debtor's Defense and Rights to Set-Off.....	147
1. Defense and Set-off arising from the Original Contract	147
2. Amendment of the Original Contract.....	148
3. Defense and Set-off Arising from the Factoring Contract.....	148

Table of Contents

4. Waiver of Defenses or Rights to Set-Off.....	149
VII. Multiple Factoring.....	149
1. Priority Rules and Their Justification.....	149
2. Inconsistency with Other Provisions.....	150
3. Prerequisites.....	151
4. Scope of Application.....	151
a) Priority between Pledge and Factoring.....	151
b) Priority between Factor and Creditors of the Supplier.....	152
c) Priority between Factor and Ordinary Assignee.....	152
Chapter 13. Technology Contracts.....	154
I. Overview.....	154
1. Evolution History.....	154
2. Sources of Law.....	154
II. The General Part and Common Issues.....	155
1. Validity of Contract.....	155
a) Written Form, Registration and Recordal.....	155
b) Approval.....	156
c) Nullity Grounds.....	156
d) Lack of Capacity.....	157
e) Avoidable Contracts.....	157
f) Legal Consequences.....	157
2. Calculation of Royalties.....	157
3. Ownership.....	158
III. Antitrust Control.....	159
IV. Technology Assignment Contracts and Technology Licensing Contracts.....	162
1. Definitions.....	162
2. Obligations of the Patent Assignor/Licensor.....	162
3. Obligations of Patent Assignee/Licensee.....	163
4. Obligations of the Assignor/Licensor of Know-How.....	164
5. Obligations of the Assignee/Licensee of Know-How.....	164
6. Obligation of Warranty.....	164
a) Legal Warranty.....	164
aa) Existence and Ownership of the Patent Right.....	164
bb) Opposing Rights.....	165
cc) Liability for Revocation of the Patent.....	166
b) Material Defects.....	167
7. Sublicenses and Assignability of Licenses.....	167
8. Survival of a License in the Event of Assignment.....	168
9. Licenses in Bankruptcy Proceedings.....	168
10. Termination.....	169
V. Other Types of Technology Contracts.....	169
1. Technology Development Contracts.....	169
2. Technology Consultation Contracts.....	169
3. Technology Service Contracts.....	170
Chapter 14. Mandate Contracts.....	171
I. Introduction.....	171
II. Agency, Mandate and Mandate Contracts.....	171
III. Characteristics of Mandate Contracts.....	172
1. The Personal Nature of Mandate Contracts.....	173

Table of Contents

2. Consensual and Informal Contracts	173
3. Services as the Object of Mandate Contracts.....	173
IV. Categories of Mandate Contracts.....	174
1. Special Mandate Contracts and General Mandate Contracts	174
2. Gratuitous and Non-gratuitous Mandate Contracts	174
3. Mandate Contracts and Sub-mandate Contracts.....	175
V. Rights and Obligations under Mandate Contracts	175
1. The Rights and Obligations of Mandators.....	175
a) Payment of Remuneration and Expenses	175
b) Intervention Rights.....	175
c) Compensation Liabilities.....	176
2. The Rights and Obligations of Mandataries	176
a) Handling Mandated Matters within the Conferred Authority in Person ..	176
b) Reporting Obligations.....	177
c) Handing over Obtained Properties.....	177
d) Compensation Liabilities.....	178
e) The Obligation of Disclosure and Selection Rights of the Third Party	178
VI. Termination and Discharge of Mandate Contracts.....	178
1. Causes of Termination	179
2. Right of Discretionary Termination.....	180
VII. Mandate Contracts and Other Types of Contracts	181
1. Mandate Contracts and Intermediary Contracts	181
2. Mandate Contracts and Commission Agent Contracts.....	182
3. Mandate Contracts and Contracts for Work.....	184
4. Mandate Contracts and Trust Contracts	185
VIII. Conclusion.....	186

Part 5 Security Law

Chapter 15. Common Issues of Personal and Real Security	187
I. Overview	187
1. Terminology.....	187
2. Evolution History	188
3. Sources of Law	189
II. Accessoriness	189
1. Concept.....	189
2. Legal Consequence of Nullity of the Security Contract	190
a) Scope of Liability	190
b) Fault of the Security Grantor.....	191
3. Counter Security	191
III. Security Provided without Authority.....	191
1. Capability to Act as Guarantor	191
2. Legal Representative without Authority.....	192
a) General Rules.....	192
b) Exceptions	193
3. Listed Companies	193
4. One-Man Company.....	193
5. Branch Office.....	194
IV. Enforcement of Security Rights.....	194
1. Jurisdiction	194

Table of Contents

2. Real Security Right.....	194
3. Guaranty.....	195
V. Defense of the Security Grantor.....	196
1. Types of Defenses.....	196
2. Debtor's Defense Against the Creditor.....	196
3. Debtor's Formation Right against the Creditor.....	197
4. Defenses Available to the Security grantor.....	197
a) Based on Statutory and Contractual Time Limit.....	197
b) Based on the Subsidiary Nature of the Security.....	198
aa) Defense of Unexhausted Remedies.....	198
bb) Defense of Urging the Debtor to Perform.....	198
cc) Defense of Non-Exercise of a Right to Set-off.....	198
5. Subsequent Adverse Change without the Security Grantor's Consent.....	198
VI. Claim to Recourse and Statutory Passing of Claims.....	200
1. Claim to Recourse.....	200
2. Statutory Passing of Rights (Subrogation).....	200
VII. Several Security Grantors.....	201
1. Several Security Grantors.....	201
a) Mixed Securities.....	201
b) Contractual Agreement.....	202
c) Expressly Stipulated Solidary Security.....	202
d) Assumed Solidary Security.....	202
e) Reduction of Rights toward a Specific Co-Security Grantor.....	202
f) Statutory Passing of Claims.....	203
2. Co-Guarantors.....	204
VIII. Security in Bankruptcy Proceeding.....	204
1. Effect on the Scope of Liability.....	204
2. Enforcement of Security Rights.....	205
3. Creditor's Omission.....	205
4. Bankruptcy of the Security Grantor.....	205
5. Effect of Pre-Emptive Registration of a Mortgage.....	205
6. Unregistered Chattel Mortgage.....	206
Chapter 16. Guaranty Contract.....	207
I. Validity of Guaranty Contract.....	207
1. Definition.....	207
2. Form Requirement.....	207
3. Joining as an Obligor and Guaranty.....	207
II. Liability of the Guarantor.....	208
1. Extent of the Guaranty Debt/Liability.....	208
2. General Guaranty, Solidary Guaranty and Maximum Amount Guaranty.....	208
III. Term of Guaranty.....	209
1. General Concept.....	209
2. Determination of the Guaranty Term.....	209
3. Maintenance of the Guaranty Term.....	210
a) Ordinary Guaranty.....	210
b) Solidary Guaranty.....	210
c) Several Guarantors.....	210
4. Prescription Period.....	211
5. Void Guaranty Contract.....	212

Chapter 17. Real Security Rights	213
I. Overview	213
1. Evolution History	213
2. Functional Approach	214
II. Common Issues.....	214
1. Separation between Security Contract and Registration/Delivery	214
2. Legal Effect of the Registration	214
3. Third-party Effect.....	215
4. Effect of a Mortgage Contract Absent Registration	215
5. Security Right Held by a Third Party	216
6. Indivisibility of the Security Right.....	216
7. Extinction of Real Security Rights.....	217
III. Mortgage.....	217
1. Encumbrable Assets.....	217
2. Scope of the Mortgage.....	218
a) Inconsistency of the Description of Collateral.....	218
b) Extension to Accessory.....	218
c) Extension to Accession.....	219
3. Pre-Emptive Registration.....	220
4. Restriction on the Mortgagor's Power of Use and Disposal	220
5. Transfer of a Mortgaged Chattel	221
IV. Pledge	221
1. Concept.....	221
2. Creation of a Pledge.....	222
a) Movables.....	222
b) Rights.....	222
c) Account Receivables.....	223
3. Obligations of the Pledgor.....	223
V. Lien	223
1. Concept.....	223
2. Commercial Lien	224
3. Rights and Obligation of the Creditor.....	224
VI. Priority Rules	225
1. Competing Mortgages (art. 414 CCC).....	225
2. Conflict between Pledge and Mortgage (art. 415 CCC).....	226
3. Purchase Money Security Rights (art. 416 CCC).....	227
4. Buyer in the Ordinary Course of Business (art. 404 CCC)	228
5. Conflict between Mortgage, Pledge and Lien	229
6. Changes to the Ranking of The Mortgage	229
7. Floating Charge.....	229
8. Priority between Tenant and Mortgagee	230
9. Conflict between Several Liens.....	230
10. Conflict between Lien, Statutory Priority Rights and Right for Segregation..	230
11. Summary	230
Chapter 18. Atypical Security Rights.....	232
I. Overview	232
1. Key Characteristics.....	232
2. Underlying Legal Doctrine.....	232
3. Publicity	233
4. Priority Rules.....	233

Table of Contents

II. Security Transfer of Ownership	233
1. Concept and Legal Effect	233
2. Comparison with Typical Security Rights	234
III. Security Assignment of Rights	234
1. Concept	234
2. Claims	234
3. Equity Interests	235
4. Recourse Factoring	235
IV. Reservation of Title	235
1. Concept	235
2. Doctrinal Construction	236
3. Relationship between Seller and Buyer	236
4. Time Limit and Accessoriness	237
5. Relationship between Seller and Third Parties	237
V. Other Types of Atypical Security Rights	237
1. Financial Lease	237
2. Security Account	237
Chapter 19. Maximum Amount Security	239
I. Maximum Amount Mortgage/Pledge	239
1. Concept	239
2. Relative Accessoriness	239
3. Determination of the Coverage of the Mortgage	239
4. Amendment of the Maximum Amount Mortgage	240
5. Maximum Amount Pledge	240
II. Maximum Amount Guaranty	240
1. Definition of Maximum Amount Guaranty	240
2. Reference Point of the Maximum Amount	240
3. Extent of a Guaranty	241
4. Guaranty Term	241

Part 6 Personality Rights

Chapter 20. Personality Rights	243
I. Overview	243
II. Main Issues	244
1. General Provisions	244
a) General and Specific Rights	244
b) Subjects Enjoying Personality Rights	245
c) General Rules	245
2. The Right to Life, the Right to Corporeal Integrity, and the Right to Health	247
a) The Right to Life	247
b) The Right to Corporeal Integrity	247
c) The Right to Health	247
d) The Obligation to Aid	248
e) Human Bodies and Remains	248
f) Clinical Trials and Research	250
g) Sexual Harassment and Freedom of Movement	251
3. The Right to Name and the Right to Entity Name	251
a) The Right to Name	251

Table of Contents

aa) Scope of Protection.....	251
bb) Deciding and Changing Names.....	252
cc) Using and Authorizing Others to Use Names.....	254
b) The Right to Entity Name.....	254
4. The Right to Likeness.....	256
a) Definition of Likeness.....	256
b) Infringement upon Likeness.....	257
aa) Improper Use.....	257
bb) Lack of Consent.....	257
c) Reasonable Use.....	258
d) Contracts Related to Likeness.....	259
e) Similar Rights.....	260
5. The Right to Reputation and the Right to Honor.....	260
a) The Right to Reputation.....	260
aa) Scope of Reputation.....	260
bb) Infringement upon the Right to Reputation.....	261
cc) News Reports and Public Supervision.....	262
dd) Literary and Artistic Works.....	263
ee) Credits.....	264
b) The Right to Honor.....	264
6. The Right to Privacy and Protection of Personal Information.....	265
a) The Right to Privacy.....	265
aa) Definition of Privacy.....	265
bb) Contents of the Right to Privacy.....	265
b) Protection of Personal Information.....	268
aa) Definition of Personal Information.....	268
bb) Processing Personal Information.....	269
cc) Rights and Obligations.....	270

Part 7 Family Law

Chapter 21. Introduction.....	273
Chapter 22. Marriage Law.....	275
I. Conclusion of Marriage.....	275
1. Marriage Procedure and Registration.....	275
2. Capacity to Marry and Marriage Prohibitions.....	275
3. Effects of Marriage.....	276
II. Marital Property.....	277
1. Categorization of Assets.....	277
2. Rights of Disposal.....	278
3. Liability for Obligations.....	279
a) General Rule on Joint Liability.....	279
b) Wilful Joint Liability.....	280
c) Special Case: Assumed Obligation for Transactions Meeting the Daily Needs of Life.....	280
d) Additional Special Case: Assumed Obligation for Performance Serving Joint Aims.....	280
4. Early Division of Community Property.....	281
5. Agreement on Marital Property Regime: Deviating Allocation Schemes.....	281

Table of Contents

III. Divorce.....	281
1. Divorce by Mutual Consent.....	281
2. Contested Divorce.....	282
IV. Financial Consequences of Divorce.....	283
1. Scheme	283
2. Marital Property Consequences of Divorce	283
a) Priority for Repayment of Community Debts	284
b) Division of Property.....	284
aa) Principles of Division of Property in the CCC.....	284
bb) Special Provisions on the Distribution of Various Objects.....	285
3. Claims to Payment under Family Law.....	287
a) Special Equitable Adjustment	287
b) Claim for Damages.....	287
c) Post-Marital Maintenance as Subsidiary Emergency “Economic Assistance”	288
4. Further Marital Property Claims upon Divorce.....	289
a) Restitution or Return of Betrothal Gifts.....	289
b) Repayment of Loans	290
c) Revocation of Gifts.....	290
d) Equalization Between the Spouses Inter Se	290
Chapter 23. Non-Marital Cohabitation	291
Chapter 24. Children’s Rights.....	293
I. General	293
II. Filiation	293
1. Background of the Rule	293
2. Contesting Paternity	294
3. Establishing Paternity	295
4. Establishing Marital-Child Status of Non-Marital Children	295
III. Parental responsibility.....	296
1. Background of the Rule	296
2. Substantive Scope of Parental Responsibility	296
3. Suspension or Termination of Parental Responsibility	297
a) Procedure and Prerequisites.....	297
b) Legal Consequences of Withdrawal	297
4. Parental Responsibility After Divorce.....	298
IV. Right of Access.....	299
V. Adoption.....	300
1. General.....	300
2. Requirements and Procedure.....	300
3. Effects	301
4. Invalidity and Dissolution	301
5. Legal Consequences of the Dissolution of an Adoptive Relationship.....	302
VI. Step-Children.....	303
VII. Appointment of Guardian.....	304
VIII. Child Support and Support of Relatives.....	304
Chapter 25. Law on Names.....	307

Part 8
Succession Law

Chapter 26. Introduction	309
I. Sources of Law.....	309
II. Inheritance Tax	309
Chapter 27. Substantive Succession Law	310
I. Statutory Succession.....	310
1. Right of Inheritance.....	310
2. Shares of an Inheritance	311
II. Testamentary Succession	312
1. General Principles	312
2. Material Validity of the Will.....	312
3. Types of Disposition Mortis Causa.....	312
4. Establishment of the Will	313
a) Holographic Will	313
b) Will Written on Behalf of a Testator.....	313
c) Printed Will	313
d) Will Established Using a Sound or Video Recording.....	313
e) Nuncupative Will.....	313
f) Notarized Will.....	313
5. Content of the Disposition Mortis Causa.....	314
6. Revocation or Alteration of Wills.....	315
III. Reservation of Share	315
IV. Execution of the Will.....	316
Chapter 28. Establishment of Succession and Loss of Inheritance Rights.....	317
I. Basic Rules.....	317
II. Estate	317
III. Legacy.....	318
IV. Extinctive Prescription	319
V. Renunciation of the Succession or Legacy.....	319
VI. Disinheritance.....	320
VII. Community of Successors.....	321
VIII. Liability of Successors for the Debts of the Estate.....	321
Chapter 29. Succession Procedure.....	325
I. General Procedure	325
II. Initiation of the Procedure	325
III. Notification Duties	326
IV. Administration of the Estate.....	326
1. Determination of the Estate Administrator	327
2. Status of the Estate Administrator	329
3. Duties and Powers of the Estate Administrator.....	329
4. Compensation of the Estate Administrator.....	331
5. Liability of the Estate Administrator	332
V. Distribution of the Estate.....	332
1. Basic Principle of Utilitarian Partition	333
2. Consensual Partition.....	334
3. Imperative of Social Justice	334
4. Principle of Reciprocity.....	334

Table of Contents

5. The Institution of Discretionary Inheritance	335
6. Procedures of Partition	335

Part 9 Tort Law

Chapter 30. Introduction	339
I. Chinese Tort Law after the Codification in 2020.....	339
1. Precedent Regulatory Regime	339
2. Overview of the Changed Provisions.....	340
3. Sources of Law	341
Chapter 31. General Provisions.....	342
I. General Remarks.....	342
II. Subject of Liability	342
1. Individuals without Civil Capacity/Individuals with Limited Capacity of Civil Conduct.....	342
2. Further Provisions on Vicarious Liability.....	343
III. Right to Sue.....	343
IV. Object of Liability	343
1. Civil Law Rights and Interests.....	344
2. Division of Rights.....	344
a) Property Rights	344
b) Personal Rights.....	345
V. Principles of Attribution	346
1. Liability Based on Fault.....	346
a) Conduct.....	346
b) Damage	346
c) Causation	346
d) Fault	347
e) Illegality.....	347
2. Liability Based on Presumed Fault.....	347
3. No-Fault Liability	348
VI. Distribution of Loss.....	348
1. Proportionate Liability	348
2. Supplemental Liability.....	349
a) Complete Supplemental Liability	349
b) Corresponding Supplemental Liability	349
c) Recourse.....	350
3. Joint and Several Liability.....	350
4. Non-genuine Joint and Several Liability	351
5. Liability Based on Fairness/Equity Liability	351
a) Criticism of the Existence of Liability Based on Fairness	352
b) Scope of Application.....	353
VII. Exemption from and Mitigation of Liability.....	354
1. Exemption from Liability	354
a) Damage Caused Intentionally by the Victim.....	354
b) Conduct of a Third Person	354
c) Assumption of Risk.....	354
aa) Differentiation from Victim's Consent and Liability Based on Fault...	355
bb) Legal Background and Adaption.....	355

Table of Contents

cc) Scope of Application and Liability's Prerequisites	356
dd) Liability of the Activity's Organizer.....	357
d) Self-Help-Rule	357
e) Further Provisions on the Exemption from Liability.....	358
2. Mitigation of Liability.....	358
a) Contribution to the Damage by the Infringed Party	358
b) Liability of the Guardian.....	358
3. Exemption from and Mitigation of Liability in Special Provisions	359
VIII. Relief.....	359
1. Types of Compensation	359
2. Classification.....	359
3. Compensation	360
a) Property Damage.....	360
b) Infringement of Personal Rights and Interests.....	360
4. Mental Distress	360
5. Injunctive Relief	361
6. Punitive Damages.....	361
a) Punitive Damage due to Intentional Infringement of Intellectual Property Rights	361
b) Punitive Damages for Environmental Damage	362
IX. Limitation Period.....	363
Chapter 32. Special Types of Torts	365
I. Liability in Employment and Service Provision Relationships	365
II. Liability for Illegal Use of Personal Information in Internet Networks	366
III. Product Liability.....	368
IV. Automobile Traffic Accident Liability	368
V. Medical Malpractice Liability.....	370
VI. Liability for Environmental Pollution and Ecological Damage	371
VII. Liability for Ultra-Hazardous Activities	372
VIII. Liability for Damage Caused by Domesticated Animals.....	373
IX. Liability for Damage Caused by Buildings and Objects	374
1. Buildings	374
2. Objects.....	374
a) Art. 1253 sent. 1 CCC	374
b) Art. 1254 CCC.....	374
aa) Liability of the Users of the Building.....	375
bb) Liability of the Property Manager.....	376
c) Relationship between arts. 1253 and 1254 CCC	376
d) Other Scenarios	376
Relevant Laws and Regulations	377
Bibliography.....	393
Index	427

Similarly to in other contexts, the mixed borrowing of foreign law has caused incoherence between the relevant norms (infra at 51 et seqq.).

3. Relationship with the General Part of the Book on Contract

Art. 769 CCC sets out, “For matters not provided in this Chapter, the relevant provisions of Chapter Six (modification and assignment of contracts) of this Book on the assignment of claims shall be applied.” This provision is a natural consequence of the factoring contract being a mixed contract, which always contains the element of assignment of claims (infra at 11). In particular, nonrecourse factoring is actually a special form of the assignment of claim, while recourse factoring is rather close to a loan (infra at 19–21).

The question arising from art. 769 CCC is therefore two-fold. On the one hand, to what extent do the general rules on assignment of claims, such as art. 548 CCC, need modifications to be applied to factoring contracts (infra at 43, 44). A commentary holds that arts. 502 para. 3 and 545–550 CCC are applicable to factoring contracts.⁶

On the other hand, it is questionable whether the provisions in the chapter on factoring contracts can be equally applied to assignment of claims outside of factoring contracts.⁷ For example, the assignment of future receivables for factoring purpose is permissible. It is still undecided whether this rule can be extended to cover any claim for any purpose.⁸ Also, the provisions governing factoring contracts deviate from the general rules on assignment of claims, particularly regarding the effect of a notice of assignment and a person’s entitlement to notify the assignment (infra at 54, 41). Equally unclear is the question of whether these provisions are only relevant to factoring contracts.⁹ The above-mentioned commentary holds that arts. 761, 763–765 and 768 CCC apply mutatis mutandis to assignment of claims.¹⁰

Although not explicitly mentioned in the CCC, it is necessary to distinguish between a factoring contract and the assignment of a receivable,¹¹ since the former act serves to create a contractual obligation, which is to be performed by the latter act. Assignment of a receivable constitutes an act of disposition, the effectiveness of which is reliant on the disposal right of the assignor. This separation is particularly essential in determining the validity of multiple factoring contracts (infra at 51 et seqq.).

II. Definition, Types and Major Contents

For the sake of legal certainty, the factoring industry had expressed a wish that the legislator should clarify the legal nature of factoring contracts. However, due to the mixed nature of factoring contracts, the Chinese legislator has opted for a definition that is particularly open in order to accommodate various factoring forms.

1. Definition in Art. 761 CCC

a) Performance of Major Functions. Art. 761 CCC defines a factoring contract as “a contract under which a creditor of accounts receivable transfers the existing or future

⁶ Huang Wei (ed.), Contract II, 932.

⁷ Art. 764 CCC is deemed as a provision which can be applied to general assignment of claims mutatis mutandis, Huang Wei (ed.), Contract II, 921.

⁸ Li Yu, LS 2019/12, 37.

⁹ SPC, Contract III, 1777.

¹⁰ Huang Wei (ed.), Contract II, 933.

¹¹ Li Yu, LS 2019/12, 34; Zhan Shiyuan, GLR 2021/5, 87–88.

accounts receivable to a factor who provides services such as accommodation of funds, management or collection of the accounts receivable, guaranty for the payment of a debtor of the accounts receivable, and the like.” This definition follows the approach adopted by the Factoring Convention and enumerates the four major functions: finance for the supplier, maintenance of accounts relating to the receivables, collection of the receivables and protection against default in payment by debtors. In this chapter, the counterparty of the factor is referred to as the supplier.

- 11 Based on the definition of art. 761 CCC it is clear that the assignment of claims is a mandatory element of a factoring contract. However, other than for its international counterparts, art. 761 CCC does not specify how many functions a contracting party has to perform in order to qualify as a factor. This question is crucial as it constitutes the prerequisite to the application of the provisions governing factoring contracts. One possible solution is to require the performance of just one function, as this maximizes the scope of factoring contracts and may foster the growth of the factoring industry.¹² This construction is supported by previous relevant norms¹³ and is endorsed by some commentators.¹⁴
- 12 A minority view believes that if the factor provides merely one service, he can only choose one of the services: “finance for the supplier” or “protection against default in payment by debtors”. If someone chooses one of the following services: “maintenance of accounts relating to the receivables” and “collection of receivables” without providing one of the other two services, this cannot qualify as a factor. This is because the mere business of debt collection does not satisfy the requirements of a factoring contract, as it does not provide finance to the supplier.¹⁵
- 13 b) Permissible Scope of the Receivables. Art. 761 CCC is silent regarding the permissible scope of accounts receivable in a factoring contract. By definition, receivables only refer to pecuniary claims arising out of a contract, excluding non-pecuniary claims and non-contractual claims. From art. 3 para. 1 of the Uniform Methods of Registration¹⁶ and art. 8 of the Provisional Measures on Factoring, the conclusion can be drawn that China recognizes basically all kinds of monetary claims arising from contracts. This includes, in particular, those from sale of goods and provision of services, as well as monetary claims or proceeds arising from the lease of facilities as the object of a factoring contract. Moreover, the supplier can only be an enterprise and not a natural person.¹⁷
- 14 It used to be debated whether future receivables could be included in the scope of a factoring contract. On the one hand, previous provisions explicitly prohibited the assignment of future receivables for factoring purposes.¹⁸ However, on the other hand, such transactions were not uncommon in practice.¹⁹ Through art. 761 CCC, China has finally allowed future claims for factoring contracts to be transferable. This decision was made based on the developing trends of relevant international conventions and other ¹² Fang Xinjun, LaSD 2020/4, 108; SPC, Contract III, 1768.

¹³ Art. 4.2 of the Norms for the Factoring Business in the Banking Sector of China (中国银行业保理业务规范, issued on and effective from August 23, 2016; hereinafter: Factoring Business Norms) and art. 6 of the Provisional Measures on Administration of Factoring Business of Commercial Banks (商业银行保理业务管理暂行办法, issued on April 3, 2014; hereinafter: Provisional Measures on Factoring).

¹⁴ Huang Wei (ed.), Contract II, 906; Li Yu, LS 2019/12, 32; SPC, Contract III, 1768.

¹⁵ Fang Xinjun, LaSD 2020/4, 110.

¹⁶ Uniform Methods of Registration for Security in Movables and Rights (动产和权利担保统一登记办法), enacted on December 28, 2021, effective on February 1, 2022.

¹⁷ Fang Xinjun, LaSD 2020/4, 111.

¹⁸ I.e., art. 13 para. 1 of the Provisional Measures on Factoring.

¹⁹ Fang Xinjun, LaSD 2020/4, 115.

major civil law jurisdictions, such as Germany and Japan.²⁰ The assignability of future claims is an indispensable requirement for revolving factoring and pool factoring, where future receivables arising in a certain period of time are assigned through a lump sum agreement to the factor.

Yet, art. 761 CCC does not deal with the time at which the assignment of future 15 receivables takes effect. It is important to identify the priority of the creditors, particularly in the case of bankruptcy of the debtor and a court attachment on the accounts receivable. One suggestion is to grant the registration the effect of perfection, which means that, upon registration of the assignment, the factor can hold his right in the future receivables against a third party who has no registered right in the same receivables.²¹ However, with this solution, the issue of when the assignment takes effect is left unsettled. Another opinion believes that the assignment takes effect as soon as the future claim comes into existence and is automatically acquired by the supplier.²²

Another question that may be raised involves the separation of future claims and 16 fabricated claims. This may render the factoring contract invalid, as future claims may never come into existence in actuality. One scholar believes that the assignment of future receivables is valid as long as the future claim can be identified (特定化) when it comes into existence, even if the individualization is unavailable at the time of assignment.²³ Future claims can be divided into two types: those with a concrete underlying relationship, and those without a concrete underlying relationship. Although the latter is more speculative, it is not a fabricated claim as long as it is foreseeable and identifiable.²⁴ However, the determination of this still requires further concretization by the judiciary. A commentator suggests that assignable future receivables should include those receivables that lack a concrete underlying relationship, if, based on the counterparty, subject matter, nature of the contract, and transaction history, they are highly likely to arise in the future.²⁵

c) Market Access Limitation. Currently, factoring businesses are subject to super- 17 vision by the CBRC and can be conducted only by commercial banks and factoring companies (supra at 1). However, there are no uniform nationwide rules regarding market access. Some local regulations were issued by provincial governments in 2019 and later. In judicial practice, the effect of restricting access to the validity of factoring contracts has not yet become a prominent question, and corresponding judicial cases are still rare.

Art. 761 CCC does not touch upon the entry requirements of the factor and leaves 18 this to be governed by the general rules on validity of contract in violation of mandatory provisions (supra Chap. 5 at 25). One opinion suggests that a factoring contract should be valid even if the market access qualification has not been granted. Another opinion holds that a factoring contract should be valid despite the lack of market access if it is a single transaction. However, they hold that if the factor lacking market access consistently offers factoring services, then all factoring contracts concluded by him should be invalid.²⁶

²⁰ SPC, Contract III, 1764.

²¹ Li Yu, LS 2019/12, 39.

²² Zhang Jing, LS 2022/2, 125–126.

²³ Zhu Hu, LS 2020/5, 124.

²⁴ Li Zhigang, JLA 2020/15, 45.

²⁵ Zhan Shiyuan, GLR 2021/5, 92.

²⁶ Li Zhigang, JLA 2020/15, 45–46.

2. Types

- 19 a) Recourse and nonrecourse factoring. The distinction between recourse factoring and nonrecourse factoring is codified by art. 766 and 767 CCC respectively, which mainly restate existing provisions. The majority of factoring businesses in China carry out recourse factoring, which is different from other countries.²⁷ Recourse factoring is defined in art. 766 CCC as a type of factoring where the factor provides financial services, but lacks the obligation to provide a guaranty for bad debts. Art. 766 CCC stipulates that the factor of a recourse factoring may choose to request payment from either the supplier or the debtor. This is in line with the majority of court judgements that were previously decided on recourse factoring. These ruled that, unless otherwise agreed by the parties, the factor has the right to choose whom he first proceeds against, and he also has the right to claim from both the supplier and the debtor of the receivable, but cannot be paid repeatedly.²⁸ This means that art. 766 CCC has finally accepted the doctrine of security assignment (让与担保说) and rejected the doctrine of indirect payment (间接支付说) with regards to the relationship between the factor, the supplier and the debtor.²⁹
- 20 Under the doctrine of security assignment, a recourse factor has the right to, although is under no obligation to, first request that the debtor pays the receivable. This is the case even if it is agreed upon in the factoring contract that “the payment of accounts receivable is the first source of repayment of factored financing”, because such an agreement is simply a hackneyed phrase in factoring business.³⁰ In contrast to the general assignment of claims, a recourse factor does not have full interest in the receivable, and is obliged to return the remaining factored balance to the supplier after recovering the receivable and deducting its financing principal and interest and related expenses. This reflects the high-level of security it offers. The factor of recourse factoring is allowed to sue both the debtor and the supplier in one suit.³¹ A supplier that has returned the principle and interests to the factor, or has bought back the receivable, is entitled to request the debtor to pay the receivable.³²
- 21 In a nonrecourse factoring contract, the factor provides funds to the supplier and manages the account or collects the receivable from the debtor as a new creditor. Any profits or losses incurred by the factor in enforcing the claim is borne by itself. Since the supplier transfers most of the risk to the factor, the factor is bound to charge a higher factoring fee, and the part of the factor’s proceeds that exceeds the principal and interest of the financing funds and related fees need not be returned to the supplier.
- 22 It is worth noting that the guaranty of a nonrecourse factor for the debtor’s credit risk only includes credit failure, financial inability and non-willingness to pay. It does not cover the risk of dispute situation, creditor fraud, force majeure, changes in the underlying transaction contract, the debtor’s defense based on the underlying transaction contract, the right of set-off, and the right to termination.³³ Therefore, in the case of the materialization of these risks, the factor is entitled to request that the supplier repurchases the receivables or assumes liability for the breach of contract.

²⁷ SPC, Contract III, 1781.

²⁸ Li Yu, LS 2019/12, 44–45.

²⁹ Cai Rui, PSL 2021/10, 138; Li Yu, LS 2019/12, 45; SPC, Contract III, 1783.

³⁰ Li Yu, LS 2019/12, 45–46.

³¹ Art. 66 para. 2 of the Interpretation of Guaranty System.

³² Art. 66 para. 3 of the Interpretation of Guaranty System.

³³ Huang Wei (ed.), Contract II, 926; Li Yu, LS 2019/12, 48; Xie Hongfei/Zhu Guangxin (ed.), Typical Contracts II 561; Zhu Hu, Jurist 2020/4, 9.

b) Disclosed Factoring and Undisclosed Factoring. Disclosed factoring (公开型保理 ; 明保理) refers to factoring where the factor sends the debtor a notice of assignment, advises the debtor about the factoring relationship and notifies them to remit payments to the factor. Conversely, no notice of assignment is sent to the debtor in an undisclosed factoring agreement (隐蔽型保理 ; 暗保理). This is consequently favored by the supplier, who wants to retain a cooperative relationship with the debtor.

However, this advantage may be offset by the inability of the factor to “perfect” the acquired receivable to secure their priority right. Only the factor is eligible for registration, and this is, by nature, unavailable in undisclosed factoring. In the case of multiple assignments, the undisclosed factor may get a share of the receivable, but only if other factors neither registered the assignment nor sent a notice of assignment (infra at 51).

c) Other Types. The Glossary “Commercial Factoring Terminology: Basic Terminology”,³⁴ published by the Chinese Commercial Factoring Expertise Committee, compiles a number of other factoring types with brief explanations. This includes domestic and international factoring, import and export factoring, single-factor factoring and two-factors factoring, advanced factoring and maturity factoring and so on. However, this topic will not be discussed further in this chapter.

3. Written Requirement and Major Contents

Art. 762 para. 2 CCC sets out that a factoring contract must be in writing. Art. 762 para. 1 CCC further enumerates typical contents of a factoring contract, which include the business type, scope of service, term of service, information on the underlying transaction contract and the accounts receivable, financing funds through factoring, service remuneration and methods of payment thereof. This provision is clearly dispositive.

III. Bar on Assignment

1. Legal Effect

One issue that frequently arises, but has not been codified, is the situation where a contract clause prohibits the supplier from assigning a receivable. Is it still possible for the factor to recover from the debtor? The answer to this question can be found in art. 545 CCC, which provides “where the parties agree that a non-pecuniary claim may not be assigned, such an agreement may not be asserted against a bona fide third person. Where the parties agree that a pecuniary claim may not be assigned, such an agreement may not be asserted against a third person.” This provision distinguishes between pecuniary and non-pecuniary claims and stipulates different legal consequences for the anti-assignment clause on this basis. In the case of monetary claims, such an agreement is absolutely ineffective against third parties. This means the assignment of a receivable is valid even if the third party (i.e. the factor) knows of the existence of the anti-assignment clause.

It can be inferred from art. 545 CCC that an anti-assignment agreement is valid between the parties, meaning the supplier is liable to the debtor for damage, if the supplier assigns a receivable against an anti-assignment agreement. Such damage could take the form of additional fulfillment costs incurred by the debtor. In such a case, the debtor may off set these costs with the claim assigned to the factor.

³⁴ 商业保理术语: 基本术语, published on April 12, 2018, effective since May 1, 2018, <http://www.cfec.org.cn/ueditor/php/upload/file/20180423/1524468499102415.pdf>

2. Subsequent Assignments

- 29 Following this, we must consider whether the bar on assignment impacts the validity of a subsequent assignment of the same receivable, for example to another factor. One commentator suggests borrowing the solution found in art. 9 para. 1 of the Convention on the Assignment of Receivables in International Trade, which states that an anti-assignment agreement has no impact on a subsequent assignment made in breach of the terms of the factoring contract.³⁵ This opinion is backed by the wording of art. 545 CCC.

3. Conflict with Reservation of Title

- 30 It is possible that conflict may arise if the supplier's receivable, in order to secure payment for the product sold under reservation of title, has already been attached with a pledge in favor of a seller. In this case, both the factor and the seller have rights in the same receivable, so it is necessary to determine the priority of the two parties. So far, there have been no relevant disputes in mainland China, as reservation of title is rarely used in practice. However, conflict between factoring, pledge and assignment of the same receivable is also possible. This is governed by analogous application of art. 766 CCC, meaning that the time of registration determines the priority of the competing rights (infra at 51).³⁶

IV. Factoring Fraud

- 31 In China, factoring frauds are quite prevalent and amount to the greatest risk in the factoring sector. Particularly prevalent are "false underlying transactions", which pertains to the fabrication of non-existent receivables by the supplier and the debtor.³⁷ Art. 763 CCC was codified to address this, setting out that in such a case the debtor of the fabricated receivable may not assert a defense against the factor on the ground that the account receivable does not exist, unless the factor clearly knows of such a fabrication. In the literature, both the prerequisites for, and the necessity of, this provision are subject to intense debate. Apart from that, in order to invoke art. 763 CCC, the debtor has to prove that the underlying transaction does not exist and that the factor has actual or constructive knowledge of this.

1. Prerequisites

- 32 a) Fabrication of an Account Receivable. Fabrication of a receivable refers to the creation of an appearance of a receivable that does not actually exist.³⁸ Due to the broad wording of art. 763 CCC and its legislative history, it can be assumed that deliberate cooperation between the supplier and the debtor is not required.³⁹ In most cases fabrication of a receivable involves conspiracy between the supplier and the debtor, however, their separate acts without conspiracy may still constitute fabrication of a receivable in the sense of art. 763 CCC. A typical scenario is where the debtor makes a written confirmation of the receivable upon receipt of the transfer notice sent by the ³⁵ Fang Xinjun, LaSD 2020/4, 114.

³⁶ Art. 66 para. 1 of the Interpretation of Guaranty System.

³⁷ He Yinglai, ZSS 2020/7, 26.

³⁸ SPC, Contract III, 1774.

³⁹ Huang Wei (ed.), Contract II, 913.

supplier.⁴⁰ However, if the supplier fabricates the receivable unilaterally and the debtor remains silent upon receipt of the transfer notice sent by the factor, this cannot be considered a fabrication by the supplier and the debtor. The debtor does not have an obligation to inform the factor of his rejection of the claim. Thus, in this situation, the defense of nonexistence of the receivable remains available to the debtor.⁴¹ The signing of the receipt certifying that the notice of assignment is received is not considered confirmation of the content of the notice, i.e., of the receivable.⁴²

b) Actual or Constructive Knowledge. According to art. 763 CCC, only actual 33 knowledge of the factor may exclude him from asserting a defense against the fabrication of a non-existing receivable. Also, a consensus appears to have been reached among commentators that constructive knowledge of the factor should also fall within the scope of art. 763 CCC.⁴³ The reasoning is rather straightforward: if constructive knowledge were insufficient to trigger the application of art. 763 CCC, the factor would have no incentive to investigate the authenticity of the account receivable or to reduce the risks of factoring fraud. In this respect, a parallel can be drawn with art. 613 CCC, which bars the buyer from asserting warranty claims if he knew, or should have known, of the defect of title.

The scope of an investigation obligation, if such an obligation can be assumed, is 34 more controversial. Art. 7 of the Provisional Measures on Factoring explicitly stipulates that the factor has the obligation to review the authenticity of the underlying transaction and “ensure that initial ownership of the accounts receivable is clear and determined, the certificate(s) of previous transfer(s) are complete and there is no dispute over responsibilities”. The model factoring agreement drafted by the Commercial Factoring Expertise Committee also includes the obligation of the supplier to submit the original documents, such as the contract, invoice, and delivery certificate, to be reviewed by the factor. One commentator believes that this investigatory obligation is comprehensive, since in most cases factoring contracts involve ordinary debts that are not securitized.⁴⁴ For this reason, if a fabricated claim is reassigned to another factor, the assignee can be protected by art. 763 CCC only if he has discharged the obligation of investigation.⁴⁵ The scholarly opinion believes that, in the case of reassignment to another factor, the assignee deserves protection even if he has knowledge of the fabrication. This assumes that the flaw of the receivable has been purged by the first assignment⁴⁶ and fails to explain the reasoning for this conclusion, which deviates from the general rule that bona fide acquisition is unavailable for ordinary debts.

Another commentator believes that the standard of investigation imposed upon the 35 factor should not be too high. The investigation should be formal, but based on the standard of an ordinary person lacking relevant expertise. They also hold that only the original contract and the confirmation of the receivable should be subject to review.⁴⁷ However, this view is less differentiated and balanced, therefore failing to create incentives for the factors to prevent financial risks. It should thus be rejected.

⁴⁰ Huang Wei (ed.), Contract II, 913; He Yinglai, ZSS 2020/7, 28; Li Yu, LS 2019/12, 35.

⁴¹ He Yinglai, ZSS 2020/7, 32.

⁴² Shanghai Pudong Development Bank Co., Ltd. Changsha Branch v. Zoomlion Co., Ltd. (上海浦东发展银行股份有限公司长沙分行、中联重科股份有限公司合同纠纷案), Judgement of the SPC, (2017) Min Shen No. 132.

⁴³ Cui Jianyuan, JLA 2021/4, 66; Ding Junfeng, PJA 2021/4, 8; He Yinglai, ZSS 2020/7, 32–33; SPC, Contract III, 1776.

⁴⁴ Li Yu, LS 2019/12, 36–37.

⁴⁵ Li Yu, LS 2019/12, 36–37.

⁴⁶ Zhu Xiaozhe/Liu Jianfeng, PJA 2021/4, 44.

⁴⁷ Li Zhigang, JLA 2020/15, 48.